NOTHING BUT DEFEAT

The Kaiser Unsuccessful in all His Efforts To Court Russian Favor.

GIVES WAY IN THE TURKISH MATTER

Almost Impossible To Obtain a Quorum in the Reichstag—Members Feel That Their Debates Lead to No Practical Action.

(Copyright, 1897, by the United Associated Presses.)

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Public interest in the reichstag is at the very lowest ebb. At no time during the past week were there more than thirty members in the building, including those in the restaurant and library, and it has been next to impossible to obtain a quorum. In view of this state of apathy on the part of the members of the imperial legislative body, it is not surprising that the restaurant which holds the contract to supply the members with meals refuses to keep the restaurant open any longer unless he is subsidized and he has given formal notice that he will retire on April 1. The National Zeitung, commenting on the fact that there were only ten members present upon the occasion of a recent debate upon an important measure, says: "Members of the reichstag seem to think that debates are useless, as they lead to no practical action."

Failed Attempt To Court Russian Favor.

The Berlin newspapers noticing the visit to the German capital of Count Muraviev, the Russian foreign minister, contrast the general indifference shown to his presence in the city with the interest taken in the recent sojourn of Count Goluchowski. Brief as Count Goluchowski's stay in Berlin was it resulted in an important change in Germany's policy towards the sultan and probably also in the Balkans. Nothing but defeat in diplomacy and disappointment of aim has resulted from the attempts of Germany to cultivate the friendship of Russia. The Russo-French entente has grown in closeness, while the understanding between the two great powers has been subjected to some strain. Count Goluchowski has now succeeded in obtaining such full agreement with the kaiser as will enable the ambassadors to work in perfect harmony. If the Turkish correspondence issued by the English foreign office has been completed up to date, instead of finishing at the close of December, the modification in Germany's policy would have been seen to alter the position in the east. The kaiser is no longer a hard and fast opponent of coercion, but has agreed to join in coercion if the other powers are unanimous.

Provisions of Proposed Reforms.

Europe is thus within view of presenting the sultan with a programme of reform under compulsion, not the "moral pressure" the Russian government still holds out for, but the material enforcement, which Austria, Italy and England have for some time agreed upon. A draft of the reform demands has at last been presented to the sultan through Baron Calice, the president of the ambassadorial conference. Some semi-official idea of the scheme of the powers has been received here from Constantinople. The provinces, Asiatic as well as European, are to have some kind of elective councils, with administrative governments. A council of state, composed of members representing the provinces and members appointed by the sultan, is to sit for stated annual periods in Constantinople. This council will have a voice in the appointment of ministers and in the regulation of the finances. The sultan is to govern through his ministers, and not through the palace functionaries, and the administration of justice is also to be reformed.

U. S. Consul in Germany Fined.

The emperor has added the penalty of expulsion from the army to the original sentence of three years' confinement which was imposed upon Lieutenant Baron von Brusewitz, who killed an artisan named Siebmann in a cafe at Karlsruhe some time ago for a fancied insult to his dignity as an officer. Court report says that the kaiser has arranged to pay a visit to Spain and has received an intimation from Queen Regent Christina that she will be glad to receive the emperor and empress in Madrid. The court at Mayence has condemned Percy Bartholow, United States consul at that place, to pay a fine of 200 marks for assaulting and severely injuring an inmate of his house by striking him on the head with a revolver. The assault was committed in October last, and in November it was reported that proceedings against Mr. Bartholow had been abandoned upon his settlement of the difficulty with the injured man privately, but this appears not to have been the case. Bartholow set up the plea that the court had no jurisdiction over him as an American citizen and a representative of the United States, but the court rejected his plea. The consul will now appeal from the judgment of the court and proposes to call upon Ambassador Omi to intervene.

American Horses in Germany.

The Prussian minister of agriculture has recently attended the regulations for the importation of American horses. The executive authorities have been instructed that henceforth American horses are to be kept isolated at the ports of entry for eight days. After veterinary inspection during that period they are to be free for sale or inland transport if the veterinary surgeon declares them free of infectious disease.

GREAT ATHLETIC CARNIVAL.

Suggestions for a Big Programme for the Day of the Fitz-Corbett Fight in Nevada.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 1.—Interest here in the coming contest between Corbett and Fitzsimmons continues unabated. It has now been proposed that when the big contest takes place a number of other events shall occur at the same time. In fact, it is now proposed to have a programme on the lines of that followed at Athens, Greece, last summer. It is not known what Stuart thinks of this scheme, but it has been suggested to him and his intimation that he may have other attractions here at the time of the fight is thought to refer to a plan of this sort.

Expect a Big Crowd.

San Francisco, Feb. 1.—W. K. Wheelock, Dan Stuart's advance representative who is now here, said last night to a reporter of the United Associated Presses: "Provision will be made to seat 15,000 people at whatever point in Nevada may subsequently be chosen by Mr. Stuart as the scene of the fight, and present indications tend to show that this accommodation will be no more than is absolutely necessary. A Chicago man has wired me that he has arranged for a train of nine cars from that city alone. The question of admission fees will be taken up when Stuart arrives in San Francisco, which he is expected to do toward the end of this week."

Gov. Jones Against Prize Fight.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 1.—In response to a query asking his opinion of the prize-fight law recently enacted by the Nevada legislature, Gov. Jones last night wired a New York paper as follows: "The new prize-fight law of Nevada is, in my judgment, exceedingly unwise. We would not tolerate such a thing in Arkansas. Our legislature, now in session, is considering a bill to make prize-fighting a felony."

INJURY TO THE BROOKLYN.

Feared That the Cruiser Was Badly Damaged by Grounding in Delaware River.

Philadelphia, Feb. 1.—No details of the extent of the damage done to the new United States cruiser Brooklyn, which struck on a rocky ledge bow-on Saturday afternoon while proceeding down the Delaware river to a safe anchorage from the ice behind the government piers at Marcus Hook, can be obtained. The cruiser after striking immediately swung back into the channel and got to the sought-for anchorage behind the ice piers. It is reported that the damage to the ship is so serious that water entered the compartments under the engine and fire rooms. No confirmation of this is obtainable from any of the officers of the vessel, but the cruiser appears to be down at the head, as if she had taken in water. One of the officers of the ship admitted that the vessel had struck on the ledge, but beyond that he would say nothing. No one at the League Island navy yard here professes to know anything further of the damage done to the Brooklyn than is here published. If the vessel has been seriously damaged she will probably be docked at League Island, and the usual court of inquiry will be ordered by the secretary of the navy.

Funeral of George B. Roberts.

Philadelphia, Feb. 1.—The funeral of the late George B. Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, will take place at 2:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The funeral will be held from Mr. Roberts' late country residence at Bala station, just outside of the city limits, where he died. The interment will be in the family vault of the Roberts in East Laurel Hill cemetery in this city. The honorary pall bearers will be the directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and the presidents of the various railroads forming the General Traffic association. The active pall bearers will be eight colored porters who have been longest in the service of the company at the Broad street station in this city.

Precautionary Measures Against Plague.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—The government is about to send a special commission to Bombay to investigate the bubonic plague which is raging there, with a view of adopting precautionary measures against the introduction of the disease in Europe. Dr. Koch, the eminent German bacteriologist, has been summoned from South Africa to head the commission.

The Alliance Floated.

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 1.—The U. S. training ship Alliance, which was aground Saturday night, has been pulled off and started for Newport News. She will be examined there to see if she sustained any damage by grounding.

CONGRESS FORECAST

Work the Senate and House Are Likely To Consider This Week.

PEACE TREATY BOOKED FOR 10-DAY

To Be Reported Favorably to the Senate as Amended by Foreign Relations Committee—Appropriation Bills Principal Work in the House.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Much of the time of the senate this week will probably be spent behind closed doors. The general treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain will be reported favorably to the senate to-day, as amended by the committee Saturday. The most important amendment is that which adds at the end of article one, the following words: "But no question which effects the foreign or domestic policy of either of the high contracting parties or the relations of either with any other state or power, by treaty or otherwise, shall be subject to arbitration under this treaty except by special agreement." This amendment, the committee believes, will cover the Monroe doctrine and the Nicaraguan canal. The second amendment strikes out all reference to his majesty, the king of Sweden and Norway, as the umpire in case the court fails to agree upon an umpire in accordance with the provisions of article III and article V. The motion to strike out this clause was carried with but one negative vote, that of Senator Gray of Delaware. An amendment was offered inserting a clause stating in positive terms that the Alaska boundary question should not be submitted to arbitration under this treaty, but it was rejected by a vote of 6 to 4. The committee does not consider this a vital question. The vote on the final motion to report the treaty to the senate as amended was so close that it startled some of the friends of the convention, who believed there would be practically no opposition to the amended treaty. When the roll was called the votes were cast as follows: In favor of reporting the treaty to the senate—Messrs. Sherman, Davis, Frye, Lodge, Culbourn, republicans, and Gray, democrat. Total, 6. Against reporting the treaty to the senate—Messrs. Morgan, Mills, Daniel, democrats, and Cameron, republican. Total, 4. In addition to this general treaty there are also the trade mark and copyright treaty with Japan and the convention providing for the boundary line between Alaska and the British possessions which will probably be sent to the senate to-day. These matters, to say nothing of the unrest of the democrats on account of the holding up of the post office nominations by the post office committee, will cause more or less of executive debate. The Nicaraguan canal bill, on which Mr. Morgan has vainly endeavored to secure a time for a vote, still remains the unfinished business. The bankruptcy bill was agreed upon to follow this but two steering committees have decided that the Hawaiian cable bill be considered first.

House of Representatives.

The house will devote the week largely to the consideration of appropriation bills and election cases. The case of George A. Cornett vs. Claude A. Swanson, from the Fifth district of Virginia, is on the calendar, and Mr. Thomas, rep. Mich., has given notice that he will call it up for action on Wednesday. The diplomatic and consular and the District of Columbia appropriation bills are ready, and before the week closes the postoffice and naval bills, it is understood, may be presented.

Loss of an American Brig.

Nassau, N. P., Feb. 1.—A schooner which arrived here last evening from the out islands reports the wreck on Jan. 21 of the American brig Rocky Glen, Capt. Colbeth, at Ragged Island, one of the Bahama group. Her crew and materials were saved, but the vessel will prove a total loss. The Rocky Glen was owned at Robbinston, Me.

Measles at Carlisle Indian School.

Carlisle, Pa., Feb. 1.—Between forty and fifty cases of measles are reported among the Indian boys and girls at the United States training school here. The school has been quarantined. It is thought that the outbreak of the disease at the institution will necessitate the postponement of the graduating exercises from February until March.

Chairman Hackett Much Improved.

New York, Feb. 1.—Chairman C. W. Hackett, of the republican state committee, who was confined to his room in the Kenmore hotel, Albany, since December 31, when he went to be present at the inauguration of Gov. Black, is greatly improved. He was brought to his home in this city yesterday. He is able to walk with a little assistance.

Killed by Electricity.

Millville, N. J., Feb. 1.—While watching the employees at the Millville Electric light station test a new battery yesterday, Benjamin Madki, seized hold of a live wire, and, receiving a shock of 1,000 volts, fell to the floor dead.

TROCHA NO BARRIER

Insurgents Find Little Trouble in Crossing the Celebrated Line.

TOWNS BURNED IN HAVANA PROVINCE

Glow in the Heavens from the First Plainly Seen at the Capital—Rebels Still Numerous in Pinar del Rio.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 1.—Advices from Havana state that, in flat contradiction of all rumors lately circulated that the rebels are demoralized and weak and ready to surrender, especially in Pinar del Rio province, where Weyler made the ridiculous assertion that only 500 remained in the struggling bands of bandits, word has just reached Havana that the insurgents had dynamited a train, causing great damage and loss of life. Although the censor, for state reasons, maintained the official pacification and suppressed the information in the newspapers, the news rapidly spread and all were soon familiar with the details. The affair created a great impression and was widely commented on. Investigation disclosed the fact that on the morning of the 28th of January as a military train was crossing a culvert at a place named Ocajura, between Candalaria and Mangos, tremendous dynamite explosions occurred, ditching the engine and tender. The armored car was completely wrecked, and other cars were more or less damaged. The engineer, fireman and thirteen soldiers were killed. The surgeon, twenty soldiers, conductor and brakeman were injured. Assistance was hurriedly sent and the dead bodies brought to Havana. The wounded were left at Candalaria.

Rebels Near Havana.

Other advices from Pinar announce the change of leadership in rebel forces. Magria Rodriguez, after successfully crossing the trocha with a strong guard, has assumed command, and Rius Rivera, who was designated to take charge of the Cuban forces in Havana province, managed to pass the celebrated line Friday and is near Mariel, now at the head of the insurgents of this section. Another striking illustration of the Spanish misrepresentations in their assertion that three western provinces are practically pacified was given Friday night when late stragglers witnessed all the eastern heavens illuminated as if Guanabacoa was no fire. That town is not burned yet, but reports received next day stated that Aranguren had struck another blow in the vicinity of Havana, sacking and burning the hamlets of Cruz, Piedra and Bacurana, near Guanabacoa. Wednesday last the rebels burned the most of the town of Nuva Paz in Havana province, despite the fact that the town is protected by ten forts with a garrison of 300 men. All were taken by surprise when they saw the rebels in the place.

More Decrees by Weyler.

Havana, Feb. 1.—The Gazette Official prints three decrees issued Saturday by Captain-General Weyler from his headquarters at Cruces. These decrees order the enforcement in the province of Santa Clara of the provisions of his last three previous decrees relative to the concentration of the inhabitants, the sale of goods and the establishment of zones of cultivation, as provided for in the provinces of Pinar del Rio, Havana and Matanzas.

BROCKTON SHOE TROUBLE.

Serious Strike or Lockout, Involving Many Factories, Now Feared.

Brockton, Mass., Feb. 1.—The lockout at T. D. Barry's shoe factory may result in a strike or lockout, involving many factories in this city. It is possible that the trouble will equal the famous lockout by some forty-two manufacturers of this city some years ago. Mr. Barry has requested his help to return to work under the conditions existing just previous to the lockout of Tuesday last. Officers of the unions visited the general officers of the boot and shoe workers in Boston, and obtained the support of that organization with which the local unions are affiliated. At the meeting of the shop crew here later it was decided to refuse to return to work. Mr. Barry employs 250 hands, and if he succeeds in his attempt to run his factory, it will bring on a bitter and long drawn-out fight.

A Forger Run to Earth.

New York, Feb. 1.—Thomas H. Stout, formerly of this city, who was arrested in Cincinnati on Friday last upon a charge of forgery, was positively identified last night. Stout for some years was the confidential book-keeper of a Wall street brokerage firm. He was always considered a steady man until his strange disappearance on Sept. 1, 1891. Upon the examination of his books it was found that he had forged the firm's name to checks to the sum of $15,000.

Married Daughter of a King Elopes.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Princess Louise, eldest daughter of King Leopold of Belgium and wife of Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, brother of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, has eloped with an Austrian captain of husars.

TO RECLAIM CONVICTS.

Mrs. Booth's Noble Efforts for the Down-fallen—At Trenton Prison To-day.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 1.—Mrs. Ballington Booth, formerly of the Salvation Army and now head of the American Volunteers, is a visitor at the state prison here, with the object of securing members from among the convicts for her organization. She delivered two addresses, one yesterday morning and the other in the afternoon, in which she explained to the convicts the character of the work she was now engaged in. Her audience at each address consisted of about 500 convicts, and there were present besides as invited guests Mrs. Emily Williamson of the State Charities Aid association, Mayor Yard of Trenton, Senator Voorhees of Union county, Speaker MacPherson of the assembly and others. Mrs. Booth informed the prisoners that eight months ago she had dedicated the remainder of her life to the service of men and women in the prisons of this country. She loved them and would help those who wanted to lead better lives. There were outside the prisons many worse people than those inside. Her organization, she explained, was the Volunteer Prison league. Homes would be established for ex-prisoners, or "graduates," as she preferred to call them, and detectives and policemen would not be permitted to cross their thresholds. In New York she had established a Hall of Hope, in which she expected to shelter many "graduates." She expected about 100 of them down from Sing Sing next April. Rev. G. Maddock, chaplain of the state prison, and the prison quartette took part in the exercises, and nearly 600 prisoners declared their intention of joining Mrs. Booth's league. To-day Mrs. Booth will go into the cells of the other prisoners for individual work which is more effective. She intends visiting in turn all the great prisons. Financial help will be forthcoming, she says, for the establishment of several homes similar to the Hall of Hope.

PAYNE'S NOMINATION.

To Be Sent to the New York Senate by Gov. Black To-night.

Albany, Feb. 1.—Gov. Black will send to the state senate to-night a batch of nominations, among which will be that of Louis E. Payne to be state superintendent of insurance. He is to succeed James F. Pierce, the present superintendent, whose term of office expires on Feb. 11. Arrangements have been made to have Payne's nomination confirmed by the vote of republican senators without the aid of a party caucus. The nomination will probably be confirmed on Wednesday. The other nominations which the governor will send to the senate to-night are for three state railroad commissioners. They are: Col. Ashley W. Cole, for a full term of five years from Jan. 29 last, to succeed himself, he having been appointed by Gov. Morton to fill the month's unexpired term caused by Commissioner Beardsley's resignation; Frank M. Baker of Oswego to fill the unexpired term of the late Commissioner Ricard. Mr. Baker was nominated by Gov. Morton, but has not been confirmed. Col. George W. Dunn of Binghamton, to succeed Commissioner Chapin, whose term expires on March 15.

$15,000 Residence Burned.

Great Barrington, Mass., Feb. 1.—Joseph C. Collins, residing in Harts-ville, went sleigh riding with his wife yesterday afternoon, and when they returned they found their residence in flames. All efforts to save the house were unavailing. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective chimney. Loss about $15,000, including diamonds belonging to Mrs. Collins and valuable bric-a-brac.

Determined To Serve as Policemen.

Louisville, Feb. 1.—Thirty-five policemen have enjoyed the board of safety from discharging them. Some days ago Mayor Todd decided that there was no fund for the payment of the salaries of these men. Upon securing the injunction the policemen put on their uniforms and reported for duty. They were given beats, and will remain on duty until Saturday next at least, when the injunction suit will be decided.

Hoboken's Fire Victims.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 1.—Chas. Schroder, whose wife and five children, the latter ranging in age from 11 years to 3 months, were burned to death in their home in the three-story building on Newark street, late Saturday night, was playing cards in a nearby saloon at the time his family were dying, and heard nothing about the fire until after the victims were dead. The name of the 8-year-old girl who was also lost in a fire on Fourteenth street early yesterday morning was Mabel Mang.

Hohenlohe Dines Russian Foreign Minister.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Chancellor Prince von Hohenlohe gave a dinner at the chancellery last evening in honor of Count Muraviev, the new Russian minister of foreign affairs.

Senator George Resting Easy.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Senator George passed another comfortable night and is thought to be somewhat improved this morning.

GOFF PROBABLY OUT

Belief Grows That He Finds It Impossible To Accept a Portfolio.

SOUTH MUST THEN BE RECANVASSED

One More Member of the Cabinet May Be Formally Announced Before March 5—Nothing Certain Regarding New York Situation.

Canton, O., Feb. 1.—With Maj. McKinley's inauguration a little more than four weeks distant, there still remains a good deal of work to do in the way of completing the cabinet. No word has been received from Judge Goff, but the conviction grows that he may find it impossible to accept a portfolio. In case he does not go into the cabinet the whole question of southern representation in that body will be reopened, and there will be another rush for Canton on the part of delegations in the interest of rival candidates. There is no light to be had on the New York situation to-day, and there is reason to believe that the president-elect may not choose the last member of his cabinet until he gets to Washington. It is also likely that one more member of the cabinet may be formally announced before the list is sent to the senate on March 5. The president-elect has taken the public into his confidence to a considerable extent already and may deem it wise to keep his own counsel during the next month. Consideration of some of the candidates for the position of assistants to the cabinet officers will next follow in order.

Diplomatic Aspirants Must Wait.

It may be stated, upon excellent authority, and no doubt the statement will be of interest, that applications for appointment to the diplomatic and consular service will not be considered until after April 1. This will not, of course, apply to the important embassies, which will no doubt be filled pretty shortly after the 4th of March. It is probable that the extra session of congress will consider and pass a bill providing for the establishment of a department of commerce and industry. If this is done there will be another cabinet officer to appoint and a number of subordinate positions to fill. Members of congress who have visited Canton have talked a good deal about the wisdom and necessity of creating another department of the government, and the prevailing opinion is that it ought to be done. It is likely that some of the semi-detached bureaucrats now nominally under the jurisdiction of the treasury and interior departments will be transferred to the new department. Congressman James Wadsworth of New York had a long interview with Major McKinley yesterday.

TO DEFEAT IMMIGRATION BILL.

More of the Work of Agents of the North German Lloyds Line Made Public.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Senator Lodge last night said: "Since receiving a copy of the telegram which Claussenius & Co. are sending out to affect votes on the immigration bill and which I gave to the press, there has been sent me a copy of a circular which this same firm has been sending out through the mail. As they stated in an interview that they were sending out their telegrams only in their individual capacity, it will be interesting to observe that this circular is addressed to agents, who, I suppose, were also to act in their individual capacity and not as agents of the North German Lloyd Steamship company. The circular in full is as follows: 'Chicago, Jan. 25, 1897.—To agents: The immigration bill, which is intended to materially restrict immigration, comes up for final disposition in the house of representatives, Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, 27th inst. It is quite clear that immigration will really be restricted, almost to the extent of total exclusion of immigrants, should the bill become a law, and every effort should therefore be made to secure the defeat of the bill. You are indirectly interested in the defeat of the bill as much as we are, and we would respectfully ask you to wire your representative in congress immediately upon receipt of this to vote against the bill, informing him that the measure virtually means exclusion, and that his vote in favor of same will mean repudiation by his constituents and his defeat at the next election. Trusting that you will not fail to give this matter your prompt attention. We are, etc., H. CLAUSSENIUS & CO.' Enclosed was a little slip in red type as follows: 'Wire your representative fully and let us know cost of telegram, and we will promptly refund amount to you.' I think it very desirable that the attention of congress, of the press, and of the public should be drawn to this attempt on the part of the agents of a foreign corporation to defeat a measure of great public importance, in which the people of the United States are profoundly interested."

Fitzsimmons Going to Nevada.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 1.—Bob Fitzsimmons has telegraphed Dan Stuart that he will start from New York for Nevada to-morrow to get ready to fight Corbett.

Which costs most,

a sick baby, or a package of Pearlina? Without the Pearlina, there's always the prospect of sickness, and perhaps worse, for your baby or for any other baby. It comes from nursing bottles that are imperfectly washed. This is a source of infant trouble that can't be watched too closely. Pearlina will set your mind at rest. Nothing washes them so thoroughly as Pearlina. One of the largest makers of nursing bottles sends out circulars with his goods, recommending Pearlina for washing. He is wise, for milk in any form cannot adhere to anything, if washed with Pearlina.

AN UNFORGOTTEN KISS.

The rain is rattling on the pane, the wind is sweeping by. Now with discordant shriek, anon with melancholy cry. A lonely man, I sit and read beside the dying fire. The daily tale of love and crime, of greed and vain desire.

Th' letters blur and fade, the room grows dim and disappears. And in its stead old scenes come back across the waste of years; And set in frame of golden hair a fair young face I see. Whose two soft eyes of deepest blue look wistfully on me.

Once, on a memorable eve, when heart and hope were young. Those luminous eyes upon my life a sudden glory flung: As she was then I see her now, my young, my only child. The brightness on her sunny brow, the music in her voice.

One question, and but one I ask, then for an answer wait. My very heart is motionless, expectant of its fate! A wondrous light—the light of love—glows in the tender eyes. Her breath is warm upon my face—O sweetest of replies!

But bless my heart! The driving rain is coming in a fear. Or is that shivering little drop upon the page a tear? Well, who would think an old gray head could be so soft as this. When more than thirty years have fled since that fond, foolish kiss!

—John Scott, in Chambers' Journal.

"RAMBLING ROBIN."

BY JAMES DAVENPORT.

People called him "Rambling Robin." You could have seen him almost any day walking along with his head hanging down, and his eyes fixed on the ground. Nobody spoke to him, nor did he speak to anybody. His clothes were in rags. He wore no collar. Sometimes a red scarf was fastened round his neck, but oftener than not his neck and chest were bare to the cutting winds. Nobody knew where he came from, and nobody cared.

Some said he had been an actor at one time—others that he had been a doctor, whilst many maintained that he was a man who had gambled away a large fortune. Whatever he might have been, we could all see that he was no common vagrant.

I do not know whether the peace and good will which are supposed to come to all men at Christmas-time had anything to do with it, but when I passed him one Christmas Eve a few years ago, as I was hurrying off home, a sudden impulse led me to stop.

"Will you come home with me and have your supper, Robin?" I said. He stopped and lifted up his head. Poor fellow! I noticed the tears spring to his eyes. Kind words were strangers to him.

"My—my supper!" he gasped. "I never have any supper." I quite believed him. In fact, if he had said he never had anything to eat at any time, I should not have contradicted him.

"But make an exception to-night," I urged. "Christmas-time, you know. People break the ordinary routine of their lives at Christmas. Come along."

He made no answer; at least, not with words, but his eyes spoke plainly enough, and, quickening his pace, we strode along together towards my home.

At last we reached the house, and my wife opened the door. My little Mabel came toddling to meet me, and as I lifted her up and carried her back on my shoulder, I told my wife I had brought a friend home for supper.

Robin and I sat talking together whilst Annie was getting the meal ready. His face had brightened, and his brilliant conversation confirmed the opinion I had formed of him, that he was a man of culture.

Mabel climbed down from my knee, and went across to Robin. "Have you no little girl?" she asked. He stroked her hair gently, and shook his head.

"And no mamma?" she asked, looking first at me, and then at the smiling face of my wife.

Robin turned his face away. Trust a child for finding the way to a man's heart.

"No, no mamma," he replied, after a pause.

Mabel sighed, and came across to me. "Is 'ee poor man?" she asked.

The intervention of my wife with the information that supper was ready saved me from replying.

The meal over, my wife rose to take Mabel to bed, but before she left the room the little girl ran back, and climbing on Robin's knee, kissed him "Dood night." Then Robin and I pulled our chairs to the fire. His eyes were shining. He seemed a different man. I handed him a cigar, and we sat smoking for awhile without speaking.

"Would you like to hear the history of 'Rambling Robin'?" he asked, bending forward. "If you would, I will tell you the first part. The second part only begins to-night. . . . You shall hear that in a year or two."

I did not quite understand him, but I nodded and waited for him to start.

"Two lines," he began, "frequently recur to me. You remember them: 'Who falls from all he knows of bliss, Cares little into what abysses.' They are the truest lines ever written," he said, and he stared into the fire for a time without speaking.

"Listen, and I will tell you how I tell. Five years ago I was a young man. Do I look young now?" and he pointed to his sunken cheeks and gray-streaked hair. "And yet five years have made the difference."

"My name is Robin Almerne. I was living with my father in Scotland, and it was there I met my Flora. I can see her now, as she was the day I first met her. It was a glorious day in June. I had sauntered out with my rod in the morning, and was whipping the stream which ran along the outskirts of the wood, when the sound of sweet music fell on my ear. I turned round, and saw a woman. She had not seen me, and as she came along she sang in a voice as sweet and pure as was the singer:

"Her face is fair, her heart is true. As spotless as she's bonnie. O! The opening gowan, wet with dew. Nae purer is than Nannie, O!"

"She was slinging her sun-bonnet in her hand, and the sun was playing with her golden hair. Her neck was bare, its whiteness contrasting with her bonnie, sunburnt face.

"When she saw me she stopped and blushed. Then she threw on her bonnet, and walked on hurriedly.

"She was a girl from the neighboring farm. I fell in love with her, and we met in the wood, unknown to anyone. Then my father heard. He forbade me to see her, and told me if I disobeyed him he would turn me from the house.

"I met Flora the same night, and persuaded her, on that glorious moonlight night, to be my wife. We came south together, and I married her. I was successful in obtaining a clerkship, and after my work at the office was done, my wife would sit in the little chair by my side, whilst I sat writing at my desk. For I had the gift of writing bits of stories, and often when the night had drawn on, and work was put away, Flora and I would sit talking of the future, of the day when I should be a famous author, and the drudgery of the office should be a thing of the past.

"But our happiness was too great to last. The roses on my darling's face began to fade, and though she tried to smile away my fears, I felt sure she was going to be ill.

"Then one night when I came from the office, I found her ill in bed. In despair I sat down to write a story, which, if accepted, would enable me to get her away into the country, or to the seaside. I worked at it all night, and finished it. Then a week later I received a letter at the office from the editor telling me that my story had been accepted, enclosing a check, and asking for more stories.

"Flora had been growing worse each day, but now, I thought, she should soon be better. I cashed the check and bought some luxuries for her, and, passing a flower-shop, I went in and obtained a spray of lilies. They were her favorite flowers.

"Then I hurried away home. I could hardly walk fast enough, but at last I reached my little house, and entered. I ran upstairs, and threw open her bedroom door.

"'Flora, I cried. 'Success at last, my darling. You shall go away for a few days now.'

"She did not answer me. 'She must be asleep,' I thought, and noiselessly I walked across the room.

"I stood over the bed, looking at my sweetheart's lovely face. It was so calm, so beautiful, so pure. There was a sweet smile on her lips, and her hair was hanging down, framing her face in gold. My thoughts wandered back to that day in June, and the words of that song came back to me.

"I knelt at the side of the bed, and, placing the spray of lilies in my Flora's little hand, waited in silence, watching and praying—praying that she would soon be restored to health again.

"She awoke with a little start.

"'I am so glad you have come, Robin,' she said, as I kissed her. 'I have had such a glorious dream. I was dreaming that you had written a book, and that the world was ringing with your name.'

"I interrupted her.

"'Perhaps that day is not far off, love. See, my story has been accepted, and the editor begs that I will send him some others.'

"She did not speak, but the proud look in her eyes told me what her thoughts were. Then she saw the lilies and she kissed me for them."

Robin covered his face with his hands, and a sob shook his frame. He rose from his chair and walked round the room. Then he stopped, and, with his face averted, he finished his story:

"In less than a week she was dead. She died in my arms. I thought she was better, but it was not to be. She was too good to live. We were too happy for this world. Heaven would have had no meaning could we have lived together longer. And when her last breath was gone I laid her back gently on the bed, and covered her face from my sight. I went on my knees and cursed—cursed my fate and everything else."

"Now, perhaps, you understand my fall. 'Why work,' I thought, 'when I have nobody to work for?' My literary work was neglected. I lost my situation at the office, I have sunk deeper and deeper, until now," he paused for awhile, "now I am 'Rambling Robin.'"

Then he came across and stood by the fire.

"But the innocent prattle of that little child of yours has brought me to my senses. As there is a God above, I will yet make the world ring with my name. Even if I cannot work for my dead Flora, I can work for her memory's sake. And so I will. I start to-night on the second part of my life. In two years I will let you know the result. I will come and see you. 'Good-by'."

I pressed him to stop the night, but he would not. I persuaded him, however, to take the loan of a few pounds, and as he walked to the door I slipped a note into his hands.

And last Christmas Eve he kept his promise. He came to see me carrying a small parcel under his arm. It was a book—the book of the year. He had written it under a nom de plume. His name now is known throughout the English-speaking world, and the book which made his name is dedicated: "To my angel wife and Mabel."—Tit-Bits.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore of important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

HEATING AND VENTILATION.

Every Room in the House Should Be Properly Provided.

To have good health, one must have an abundance of fresh air to breathe. Women, as a rule, do not get this, principally because our houses are improperly ventilated, and in order to have fresh air, one must have draughts and be exposed to the danger of taking cold.

It is safe to say that one may take the houses through any section of the country by course, and on the average not one in a thousand will be found with facilities for ventilation, which were provided when the house was built.

Scientific fresh air supply is a subject that architects and builders seem to leave entirely out of their calculations. In very many instances the furnace or heating apparatus draws its cold-air supply from the cellar. The sanitary condition of this kind of hot air is something dreadful to contemplate. Most cellars are merely incubators for germs of various sorts. Even if the cellar is kept approximately clean, there is the white and blue mold that are incident to damp walls and underground places of all sorts. When in addition to this there are to be found in almost all corners decaying vegetables and animal matter, the situation becomes one that really demands the attention of the health authorities. But oblivious of this condition of things, the unthinking householder gives free access to the air from this hot-bed of disease into the hot-air chamber of the heater.

While the temperature may suffice to destroy some of the germs, it is not sufficient to remove those that are the most dangerous. On the contrary, the high degree of heat develops, propagates and raises them to life, and they come into our living rooms strong as an army with banners. They enter our lungs, settle upon our food, mingle with our beverages, and, finding a lodgment in the milk supply, they increase there with the utmost rapidity, creating a condition within a very short period that makes the milk little more nor less than rank poison. One of the first requisites of a healthful atmosphere in a dwelling is to provide a fresh-air supply, taken from a point several feet at least above the ground level. It is absurd to say that there will be no draught in the cold-air flues open at the level of the second floor. The moment the heat begins to rise through the pipes, it draws its supply from the cold air below it, and, with a properly arranged flue, there is not the slightest difficulty in getting the most perfect action. Every room in every house should have a ventilator either at the ceiling or the floor, or both.

In one of the best arranged houses ever constructed there was a ventilator eight inches by twelve in the baseboard of every room. This was connected with a pipe that ran to the kitchen chimney, and was imbedded in the masonry. The heat of the chimney created a continuous current, and drew out the cold and stagnant air at the floor.

When the hot-air register was open a steady draught was made, and with a very slight opening in the ceiling ventilator, the most perfect conditions were secured. When there is no provision made for ventilation, the very best substitute is a window slightly lowered from the top. Another way is to raise the lower sash and put a fitted strip of board in the open space, then close the window down upon it, leaving about three-fourths of an inch open between the two sashes. This, however, is but a makeshift, and does not fill the place of properly arranged flues with gratings that can be opened and closed at will.

When the heat is first turned into a room it is of great advantage to open a window from the top for the space of an inch or so. This gives opportunity for circulation of air, and the room warms up much more quickly. When the heat comes into a room filled with cold air without any escape, it simply beats against what is practically a cold-air cushion, and makes very little headway.

All housekeepers ought to study the principles of ventilation and be able intelligently and practically to regulate the fresh-air supply of their homes.—N. Y. Ledger.

HOUSE PLANTS IN PLACE.

Care That Makes Palms Grow Green and Glossy—Fashionable Flower.

There is probably nothing quite so attractive for a household ornament as a healthy, growing plant. Just at this season of the year the palms and rubber plants, which have been enjoying a riotous span of life under the smiling influences of the sunshine all the past summer, have been restored to their accustomed places in the house. As a rule, whatever these plants have added to their girth or height during the summer will represent their gain for the year. Their tropical constitutions are not capable of much exertion or expansion during the winter, and the unfolding of a new leaf is really a matter of great moment during this period to those who are fond of watching their development and growth.

An experienced florist says that contrary, perhaps, to the general impression the fall is not the season for repotting or slipping rubber plants. The spring is the time. Repotting of both palms and rubbers was made a necessity in hundreds of cases lately after the night of the big storm, when so many fine plants, still adorning gardens, were toppled over. Excepting for this they would have needed no change until next spring, for the little which would have been added to their size would not have affected the root.

Palms and rubber plants are in such general use as house ornaments because it is comparatively easy to care for them. Just like human beings, they are extremely sensitive to changes in temperature, and should be guarded against draughts. They want sunshine and light for healthy growth, and deprived of either or both they soon show a failure in beauty and vigor. In the average house the plant has some tough experiences. Madam decorates the parlor with silken scarves—puts the plant where the softened glare of a big lamp falls prettily on it, but at the same time, little by little, either scorches or dries up the plant itself, or it is placed with all due regard to light and sunshine in a window recess, where every wind that blows sends a shivering and chilling sensation to its very heart. If all the conditions of sun and light, with an equable temperature, are in the plant's favor, besides keeping the roots slightly moist, it is necessary that the leaves of both plants and rubbers should be kept free from dust by washing them off carefully every day with a sponge or soft cloth in lukewarm water. Attention of this kind need not take much time, and the appearance of the plant in its glossy green will be ample compensation.

Unless fortunately protected by dense overhanging foliage, neither rubbers nor palms, if still outdoors, could have survived the recent frosts. There will be many mild days yet, and, in fact, off and on all winter when they could be exposed without danger, but as a rule, it is best to keep them indoors and run no risks, for it takes a long time for a plant to regain its vigor after a blight, whether it be a freezing or a scorching one.

The chrysanthemum will not be queen of the floral realm this fall. Orchids, in beautiful colorings and shapes, will be the proper thing for all decorative work for those who can afford such a costly luxury.

Roses are beautiful just now, whether it be the last one, "blooming alone," or whether one views a collection in a florist's storehouse. The American Beauty holds her own as queen of the mall, and will be just as popular this winter as ever. While moderately costly just now, when the gay season begins and social events succeed each other with giddy rapidity, the price will mount higher and higher, until it is far beyond the reach of the ordinary being. The modest violet is on hand also, and holds its own. Bridal bouquets are just as popular made of lilies of the valley as of bride roses, and possibly are more artistic. Valley lilies can be had now, but the fashionable thing is, of course, the orchid.—Washington Star.

Foreigners are unanimous in support of the American minister. The outcome of the case depends upon action from Washington. The German minister also has been attacked in the streets. PAID DEARLY FOR PREJUDICE.

Epidemic of Smallpox Caused by the Opposition to Vaccination.

A pamphlet just issued by the Jenner society of England outlines in a most effective way the history of the terrible and utterly needless outbreak of smallpox which last spring and summer convicted the residents of Gloucester of stupid ignorance. It seems that in the ten years from 1886 to 1895 15,682 children were born in that city. Of these, 3,176 died, 2,378 were vaccinated and the other 10,378 grew up without any protection from the dread disease. This was because the place had become a noted center of the anti-vaccination craze, and the local authorities had either shared or yielded to that form of lunacy and allowed all who chose to violate the law that has made all civilized communities as safe from epidemics of smallpox as Nova Zembla is from yellow fever.

The result of this was that the total number of vaccinations there, which amounted to 1,095 in 1886, fell to 472 in 1887, to 140 in 1888 and to 34 in 1894. At last, of course, somebody brought the malady to Gloucester. That was toward the end of 1895. It attacked about 2,000 persons, of whom about 400, chiefly young children, died, and it was stamped out in little more than two months by systematic and diligent vaccination and revaccination, so that, having attacked 744 persons in April, 1896, it had wholly disappeared by the end of the following July. In all these months not one vaccinated person took the disease.—N. Y. Times.

CAR SHOP ECHOES.

A Report From the O. and W. Car Shops That Is Attracting Public Attention.

As Cyrus Coddington, of No. 150 Wickham avenue, repaired the cars in the O. and W. car shops, as he stripped them down to the frame, rebuilt them, or patched them so as to make them presentable, it may have struck him that mankind is very much like railroad cars. Some of them run for years, escaping smashups, derailings and pulling through ordinary wear and tear with very little indication of being untrustworthy. Some bedecked with paint and tinsel run along for a time only to find themselves in the repair shop. Some require building up from the frame and some have very little frame or anything else to repair.

"Seven years ago," Mr. Coddington says: "I had an attack of kidney complaint, a very severe attack. It left me and I was not again bothered until a very short time ago." This was his first introduction to the repair shop. Seven years after he was on the trestles again. Continuing he says: "The last time it did not take so long to straighten me out and I give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for it. I got a box at J. E. Mills drug store. I had to get something for my back ached acutely. I couldn't stoop or lift and the urine went wrong. After using Doan's Kidney Pills the pain left me and the urine righted itself. They did all that could be expected of them."

The kidneys will go wrong—cold, strains, exercise, indulgence in dissipation or pleasures force them to the repair shop. It may only be a screw loose somewhere. It may be the entire fabric or tissue requires a thorough overhauling, a complete renovating. Nothing can equal Doan's Kidney Pills as a restorer or renovator.

PUBLISHER.

GEORGE H. THOMPSON, EDITOR.
J. F. ROLINSON, CITY EDITOR.
A. E. NICKINSON.

The railway employees of the State are very much in earnest in demanding the appointment of Peter F. Keefe as Railroad Commissioner in place of Alfred C. Chapin, whose term will expire in March. A committee representing the engineers, conductors, firemen, trainmen and telegraphers called on Gov. Black, a few days ago, and presented the claims of their organizations to representation on the commission. They received respectful, but not cordial, treatment, for Platt has slated for the place George W. Dunn, of Binghamton, one of his useful men and loyal followers. The railroad men evidently realize that there is little chance of their candidate's appointment for the last number of the engineers' official organ warns the Republican leaders that party lines are easily broken and that the railroad employees, if they hang together, hold the balance of political power in the State.

The "insensate clamor" against the appointment of Lou Pavn as Insurance Superintendent is not moving Governor Black from his purpose. There was no reason to suppose that it would. He never pretended to be anything else than an extreme and malevolent partisan, and he was trained and won prominence in a vicious school of politics that regards public office not as a public trust but as a "private snap," to be used for rewarding personal friends and party workers. The responsibility for Black's misdeeds rests not so much with Black as with the people. Republicans accepted him, although they knew nothing of his character except as indicated in the indecent speech which he made in the convention that nominated him, because he was regularly nominated, and many Democrats, it is to be feared, voted for him as a rebuke to their party for the nomination of Bryan on a silver platform. They mixed the dose themselves and should not murmur because it is proving very nauseous.

A CRYSTAL WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Doell Celebrate the Fifteenth Anniversary of Their Marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Doell celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, Saturday evening. There were present about forty friends, among whom were the members of the Clover Club of New York, about a dozen strong. The guests brought with them many handsome presents, and that of the Clover Club was especially fine, being a plate glass mirror over eight feet high.

Another guest from out of town was George F. Edmondston, Superintendent of Transportation of the Sea Board Air Line Railway, whose headquarters are in North Carolina. The evening was pleasantly spent in card playing and other social amusements.

Mr. Doell and Miss Mary A. Green were married Jan. 30, 1882, in Port Jervis, by Rev. Goyne Talmadge, a brother of the great Brooklyn preacher. Time has dealt kindly with them and their friends wish for them a continuance of prosperity and happiness.

The "Whipporwill" Entertained.

The "Wallkill Whipporwill" was entertained at the residence of Mr. Comfort, on Wawayanda avenue, Friday night. There were about 100 couples present and the evening was spent in dancing and playing and other social pastimes.

Dinner in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Wilcox.

Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Mills gave a dinner, Saturday night, at their home on West Main street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Wilcox, who will soon start on their western trip. Fifteen guests were present.

A force of workmen are overhauling the O. and W. depot. Paint, varnish and shellac are doing wonders in beautifying the structure.

Driving Park Association Election.

The directors of the Middletown Horse Fair and Driving Park Association, Saturday night, elected C. A. Brown President.

May Be Good for the Railroad But It's Ruin to the Men.

Several former Middletowners are thrown out of employment by the closing of the West Shore shops at Frankfort and New Durham. All the repair work of the road is to be done at the West Albany shops of the Central Hudson River road, which are among the largest in the world and have sufficient capacity to do the work of both roads. It is said that a very considerable saving will be effected by the change.

The children's service in the afternoon was very interesting and was largely attended.

DYNAMITING A BROKEN BANK.

Bold Attempt to Destroy the Building of a Wrecked Private Banking Firm by United Press.

HOLIDAYSBURG, Feb. 1.—Early this morning an attempt was made to dynamite the banking house of Gardiner, Morrow & Co. The explosion was terrific and roused many people. The door was torn off and the building otherwise damaged. No damage was done to the vault, but glass in adjacent stores and residences was shattered. The crime was committed by tearing out the frame work about the door and inserting the dynamite. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

Last September the bank failed and a statement of its condition recently made indicates that it had been insolvent for many years and has assets only sufficient to pay between fifteen and twenty per cent.

AT GRACE CHURCH.

Special Musical Services Held Last Evening.

Grace Church was crowded, last night, at the special musical service. The music was very fine and admirably rendered. These musical services will be a special feature at this church on the last Sunday evening of each month.

The music was under the direction of Harvey L. Wickham. A quartette, consisting of Mrs. Olney, Mrs. Harvey Wickham, Z. K. Greene and David Eilenberger, assisted the choir. Besides the regular choral evensong the following special music was rendered:

Magnificat in F. Tours.
Nunc Dimittis in F. Tours.
"Charity." Rossini.
Quartette—"And God shall wipe away all tears."

The choir numbered about thirty and sang with admirable precision, and the quartette sustained their difficult parts in an able manner.

Miss Emma Wolf and Master John Bright, together with Mrs. Wickham and Mrs. Korn, gave a very spirited rendition of "Charity," by Rossini, during the offertory. Mr. Wickham opened and concluded the services with selections by Scherwenka arranged by himself.

Another festival will be given on the evening of the 28th inst., at which Mendelssohn's cantata, "Hear my prayer," will be rendered.

OBITUARY.

Will White.

Will White, a well known and deservedly popular citizen of the town of Wallkill, died about noon, to-day, of gastritis, from which he had suffered for some time. A more extended obituary will appear to-morrow.

Mary W. Houston.

Mrs. Mary W. Houston, widow of the late John G. Houston, died, Sunday noon, at the home of her son, George J. Houston, in Scotchtown, with whom she lived, aged seventy-eight years. The cause of her death was pneumonia. She was sick three weeks and though everything possible was done for her, her system, weakened by the infirmities of age, was not able to resist the ravages of disease.

Mrs. Houston was a daughter of Colville and Sarah (Denton) Bradner and was born in the town of Goshen. After her marriage to Mr. Houston she made her home in Scotchtown and for forty years was a faithful and consistent member of the Presbyterian Church in that village.

She is survived by her son, George J. and by two sisters Sarah, wife of Henry VanDuzer, of near Goshen, and Louis Bradner, also of the town Goshen. She is also survived by two step-daughters, Mrs. Ira Bradner, of this city and Mrs. William Mills, daughters of Mr. Houston's first wife.

The funeral notice appears elsewhere.

HYMENEAL.

Clark-Green.

Albert Benton Clark and Miss Sarah Elizabeth Green, both of this city, were married at the First Presbyterian manse, Saturday evening, by Rev. Dr. Gordon. Mr. and Mrs. John Parkin, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were present as witnesses.

May Be Repeated.

Requests have been made for a repetition of "Our Grandmothers' Songs," given last week, at the Assembly Rooms, but those who had the matter in charge have not yet decided whether or not to undertake it.

Sleep

Induced by the use of opium, opiate or narcotic compounds is bad, decidedly bad. They undermine health and shatter the constitution and the patient is steadily growing into a worse condition—often resulting in the terrible slavery and misery of the cocaine and opium habit. Sleep induced by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla does not perhaps come as quickly, but it comes more surely and more permanently through nature's great restoring and rejuvenating agent, purifies the nerves with life-giving force and builds up the system as a foundation from the very foundation of all health and life—the blood—pure, rich, red blood.

George was arrested, but this morning he claimed that he remembered nothing of the occurrence but supposed he must be guilty as everyone said so. The Recorder sentenced him to one year at Albany, but afterwards changed the punishment to sixty days in Goshen jail.

William Rogers, a young colored man from the town of Blooming Grove, visited some friends in Fulton street, Saturday, and when he started to take the trolley for Goshen he was "well loaded." He asked everyone he met the nearest way to the trolley, and finally struck a young lad, John Hogan, whose answer did not please him. The latter caused Rogers's arrest, and to-day he pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and claimed it was a first offense. He was placed in the lockup until his record could be looked up.

Charles Eppinger, charged by Rudolph Kirchner with being a disorderly person, was arraigned before the Recorder. He pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial, which was set down for Friday, Feb. 5th, at 9 o'clock. He was released in $300 bail for his appearance.

HOW TO JUMP OFF A CAR.

What Railroad Men and Other Experts Say About It.

Most every person has his own particular idea of how a man should jump off a moving car, that is if he ought to jump at all. There is only one correct way, however, so we have been informed by railroad and other men, and that is to jump backward sufficiently hard to equal the momentum of the car. In this way there is no jar to the body nor is there much danger of falling.

Most people have the erroneous impression that they should jump in the direction in which the car is moving but in so doing are liable to fall.

Jumping on or off moving cars is dangerous at best but most people do it more or less and if they are to continue should learn how to jump with safety and with grace.

Confessed to Having Robbed an Erie Station.

F. R. Dexter, seventeen years old, an extra Erie operator, was arrested in Port Jervis, Saturday, charged with having robbed the Erie station at Narrowsburgh, Wednesday evening. He acknowledged his guilt and returned all the stolen money except $4. Young Dexter lives at Narrowsburgh, is respectfully connected and has heretofore borne a good character. He was taken back to Narrowsburgh and will probably be prosecuted.

HEIR TO A LARGE FORTUNE.

A Herald "Personal" That Was Worth a Good Many Thousand Dollars to Glover Clapham.

A few weeks ago a "personal" appeared in the New York Herald asking for the address of Glover Clapham as the advertiser had something to communicate to him which would be to his advantage. The advertisement was brought to the attention of Mr. Clapham, who is one of Bloomingburgh's best known citizens, and he wrote at once to the address given and has, he says, been notified that he is one of three heirs to an estate of $350,000 left by a distant relative whom he has not seen and of whom he has not heard in years.

A Cold Morning.

This was one of the very cold mornings of the season, the temperature having fallen lower on but a few occasions. As usual the great difference in thermometers renders it impossible to get anything very accurate, the range of temperatures reported in this city running all the way from one degree below zero to eight degrees above. At Pine Bush the thermometer stood at 6° below zero, and at Thompson Ridge at 12° below.

The Pettiest Kind of Petty Larceny.

Monroe Snavel, formerly of this city, who has gained much unenviable notoriety by many recent escapades, was arrested in Paterson, Friday, and held to bail for taking goods to the value of ninety cents from Joe Kelley, son of John Kelley, a green grocer. Snavel said he took the goods in exchange for a dollar that Kelley owed him for stable rent.

A Hand-some Sleigh Wrecked.

A handsome well-bodied sleigh from John Sayer's livery stable was badly wrecked, Saturday night, by the running away of the horses which were attached to it. The team was in charge of a stable employe at the time the runaway occurred.

PROGRESS OF SCIENCE.

Wonderful Forward Strides Made During the Year 1896.

Prof. Roentgen's Discovery of the X Ray the Most Notable Achievement—What Edison Expects to Accomplish in the Near Future.

[Special New York Letter]

From a scientific view point 1896 may well be called the banner year of a decade remarkable for wonderful discoveries and inventions. The medical, astronomical and mechanical progress made during the past 12 months is simply marvelous, and it seems no more doubtful if we who live to-day will witness another such epoch of startling scientific advancement. The best thought of Europe and America contributed to produce these grand results, but in a newspaper article space can be given to but a few of the greatest achievements.

Foremost, last January, was Prof. Roentgen, who at that time, made public his discovery of the X ray. One set of students had for a long time been giving their attention to the study of the phenomena of phosphorescence and fluorescence, while Dr. Crookes and others were experimenting with tubes, the material of electrode, and the increasing and diminishing of the intensity of the electrical discharge. But to Prof. Roentgen came success. He inclosed an excited vacuum tube in blackened cardboard treated with barium platinocyanide. The cathode beam was accompanied by a new and strange radiance, which, although of fluorescent and photographic quality, can scarcely be any form of light. It is not susceptible of polarization or refraction. After these facts became known there was an enormous amount of activity in the physico-medical world, and there seems almost no limit to the uses to which scientists may put the rays. Tesla and Edison have devoted months of patient study of the laws governing them. Mr. Edison has found 120 different crystals that will fluoresce under the X ray.

In spite of all efforts to improve the quality and increase the efficiency of the incandescent electric lamp, heretofore over 90 per cent. of the energy expended has appeared as heat and not light. Now it seems possible that "cold light" or light in which the waste of energy in the form of heat is reduced to a minimum, has been obtained. Dr. MacFarlane Moore, of Newark, N. J., employs a vacuum tube in which the light is produced by the passage of the electric discharge through the rarefied gas of the tube. In such light there is no combustion and but little heat. Tesla has attempted this form of lighting, but the results have been unsatisfactory. Mr. Edison has made a contribution to this problem in his fluorescent bulb. The commercial possibilities of these inventions are not yet known.

Last June the results of experiments conducted for the last five years at Cornell college were made known. They seem to prove that electricity may be made to stimulate the growth of plants.

PROF. CROOKES, INVENTOR OF THE CROOKES TUBE.

Those receiving bright electric rays at night and sunshine in the daytime grow much faster than those which do not receive the artificial stimulant. By applying the rays direct to plants many ran to seed before edible leaves were formed. On flowering plants the effect was wonderful. Blooms were hastened, their number multiplied and color made more brilliant, but they faded sooner. Prof. Lipman, the French physicist, in August, exhibited before the Royal society of London some specimens of colored photographs, produced by the direct action of luminous rays. They were obtained by a simple exposure. The color is due to a physical texture produced in the photographic film by the light, and not to any deposited pigment. The chemical action of light upon the agents is the same as in ordinary photography; the different effects are due to a physical result brought about by having a metallic mirror in contact with the photographic film during the exposure of the plate. The result consists of colored, brownish-black deposits of reduced silver spread in a series of their

To Benefit Others.

The Editor of The Bloomfield Iowa Farmer Writes of the Good Done by DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE.

THERE ARE a great many unselfish men and women who wish others to know what has restored them to health and happiness. Mr. C. F. Davis, publisher of one of the best newspapers in Iowa, writes from Bloomfield Ia., Aug. 18, 1896. "My desire to benefit others prompts me to write this. We have used Dr. Miles' Remedies in my family for nearly two years with most gratifying results. We would not now do without them. My wife had been weakly and down nearly every summer for the past fifteen years. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is exactly what its name implies; a sure cure for a weak, fluttering, palpitating heart, and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are most excellent."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants. DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Edison's kintoscope of 1895 developed into the vitascope of 1896.

A typewriter bicycle has been invented. It consists of a large typewriter mounted on a serviceable wheel which can follow the movements of an army. The machine can be operated while it and its rider are held erect by portable props. It has worked satisfactorily in England. Electric bicycles have been made, but are not popular. In France a pneumatic tricycle hearse has been built. A velocipede ambulance is in use in the Berlin hospitals. It is run on five wheels, four supporting the body of the ambulance, while the front one is used for steering. Transportation is accomplished with more ease and comfort than when horses are used.

In 1896 Nansen approached to within 225 miles of the north pole.

Observations made at the Lowell observatory of Mars confirm the opinion that seasonal changes occur on that planet similar to those with which we are familiar, as the sprouting, growth and decay of vegetation. As the canals are only visible at certain periods, it is concluded that fringes of vegetation spring up along the banks when the water comes and so help define them to the human eye. An extraordinary phenomenon noticed this year is the doubling of the canals. A canal which had been a single thin dark line is replaced in a day or so by two that for a thousand miles or more run exactly parallel, though separated by a distance of from 100 to 250 miles. This adds to the arguments in favor of extant life on Mars.

In early September Mr. Octave Chanute and Mr. A. M. Hering, at Dune Park, Ind., made a large number of trips in a flying machine without a bruise or a break. A maximum distance of 300 feet was covered at a height of 35 feet the machine was lifted, less far and shock than a ride in a rubber-tired carriage. On a sandhill at a height of 30 feet the machine was lifted. Mr. Hering fitted himself under it and allowed the wind to raise it. He made two or three quick steps, when the machine soared from the ground and darted through the air. To stop the machine the operator tilted the apparatus slightly upward in front, when it coasted slowly to the ground. It has the general form of an albatross, but is furnished with seven wings.

ternity. Reports made by the London (England) board of metropolitan asylums and by the Pediatric society at its session in Montreal prove that diphtheria, formerly one of the deadliest diseases, has met with an efficient opponent. The serum treatment has also been developed in Paris, France, by Dr. Roux and others for use in cases of cholera and by the bacteriologists of the health board in New York City as a preventive of tetanus. It is also stated that experiments at the St. Lawrence state hospital at Ogdensburg, N. Y., also at Paris, go to prove that the acute delirious mania is a germ disease, to be treated accordingly. Successful experiments with the serum treatment in leprosy have been made.

The recent discovery of the clustering of bacilli in typhoid is likely to prove of great service in diagnosing that dread disease.

Thomas A. Edison, the famous American inventor, while perfectly satisfied with the progress made in 1896, expects to see during 1897 giant strides in electrical science and radical changes in the mode of living, caused by the industry of inventors. One of the earliest successes he predicts is the perfection of the phonograph, about whose sound there is no longer to be any twang or uncertainty. Electric lighting, he says, will be made cheaper, as science will lessen the cost of the initial process of producing the current. His aim is to
